As illustrated in FIG. 1, a group of RAID (Redundant Arrays of Inexpensive Disks) disk drives 10 are commonly used in systems such as disk arrays for backing up data. Specifically, in a RAID1 system, data 1 is striped across 2 drives, data 2 is striped across 3 drives, and data 3 is striped across 4 drives. At the same time, parity 1, 2 and 3 is stored on a single drive, and the RAID1 system makes sure the data and the parity are consistent by reading and writing both the data and the parity every time a write operation is to be performed. There are two shortcomings with this solution. First, the parity drive is the same size as the largest drive, so the parity drive has to be large enough to store data and parity. The parity drive becomes a bottleneck for RAID1 and should be avoided. Second, even though RAID1 does not require any blocks to be read during a read operation, it still is necessary to read the blocks of the data drive and the parity drive every time the system needs to access a data block. It is desirable for a RAID system to have a better performance. It is desirable for a drive to be capable of reading data and detecting changes without being concerned about data being duplicated.

Q: How do I find the volume of a paraboloid between two planes? The question: I need to find the volume of the paraboloid $z=x^2+y^2$ from $(-\frac{1}{2}, 0)$ to $z=1$ with the planes $z=0$, $y=-1$ and $y=-2$. I know that $\int_{-2}^0 \int_{-1}^1 \int_{-2}^2 dx dy dz = 2x \int_{-1}^1 \int_{-2}^2 dy dz$. Now, for $y = -1$ and $y = -2$, I rewrite the integration as \int_{-2}^0
